Weather keeps area on its toes

- Londoners told to be on tornado lookout
- Violent weather to persist through early fall

Mother Nature has been on a whirl this week in southwest Ontario.

But the violent weather system that whipped up an F-3 tornado Sunday in Goderich and left London on the watch for funnel clouds yesterday isn't out of the ordinary.

In fact, the region is behind schedule for its share of wicked weather.

"We are in the time of year when these storms happen," Environment Canada meteorologist Geoff Coulson said. "We got off to a bit of a slow start this year."

Southern Ontario's tornado season starts in late April and continues through early October. The season plays out differently each year depending on how — and when — the ingredients that form a perfect storm come together, Coulson said.

Simply put, everything has fallen into place this week. Heat and humidity in the lower atmosphere are providing fuel, with the spark

- Environment Canada says average number of tornadoes each year in Ontario is 11.

— which any good storm needs to truly get rolling — coming from a cold front that's sweeping through, driving warmer, lighter air upward, Coulson said. When all of that gets mixed together, it causes one heck of a collision that can lead to heavy rain, strong wind and swirling clouds. If one of those clouds touches the ground, the storm officially becomes a tornado.

Around 8 p.m. last night, one possible tornado was reported near Shelbourne, another in the Lucan area and a third on the Lake Huron shoreline between St. Joseph and Bayfield. ● ANGELA MULLINS

Jason Kloss speaks with steely determination in describing his grandfather's past effort to swim across one of the Great Lakes.

The 24-year-old Londoner will be embarking on a marathon swim of his own Saturday in support of cancer research, navigating 65 kilometres of open water in Lake Huron from

While Kloss will be swimming on his own and is forbidden from bracing himself against a boat during his journey — doing so would negate his effort — a support staff will be

"I'm just really excited," Kloss said. "I've put a lot of time and effort into training for this event and I know that I'm ready and I'm going to kick ass on (Saturday)."

Kloss has been training five to six days a week for months now, both in the water and the gym preparing his body for the rigours of Lake Huron. He's also been working full-time at Canpages, training for the swim during his free time.

Cities unite in requests for province

The 2011 Association of Municipalities of Ontario wrapped up in London yesterday.

The event brought municipal politicians and administration together from around the province to discuss various issues.

The three-day conference included keynote speeches from all three provincial party leaders.

The group made 12 requests for the Dalton McGuinty government, ranging from new revenues and legislation to changes in the arbitration system that usually does not favour municipalities.

London Mayor Joe Fontana says it's important municipalities unite with a single voice.

"Going into an election, there are several things we as municipalities need from the senior levels of government," he said.

FALL FASHION: BREAK ALL THE RULES

LONDON STYLE

SARAH FRANCIS
METRO LONDON

I constantly seek style approval; whether it's from total strangers or my discerning three-year-old. So when my husband says things like, "I thought you weren't supposed to wear black with blue?" or people shoot sympathetic stares at my white jeans, I wish I could shout out, "Everyone calm down! This, here, is fine!"

With the approach of a new season, it's time we Londoners put outdated fashion myths to rest, once and for all. Since Mayor Joe Fontana still hasn't approved funding for fashion police, I've compiled a list of rules you can officially break this fall:

Respect the colour wheel
As Duchess Kate has proven, wearing black & blue is no longer a bruising faux-pas — whether it's brilliant cobalt or navy (yes, navy). As for black with brown? It's a combo favoured by the chic elite. In short, black is a neutral that goes with everything. Period. Next.

▶ Ignore the haters:
Black & brown look super chic when worn together.

No white after Labour Day

Winter white, as in off-white, used to be the only acceptable option for fall. This season, try out stark white jeans, turtle-necks or dresses paired with black. Any rules? Opt for heavyweight fabrics.

Fall florals

Floral has always been a strictly spring-summer print — and yet, designers brightened up fall runways with loads of florals this year.

Dress for your age

If you've got a body, flaunt it. Fab arms? Go sleeveless à la Michelle Obama. Amazing gams? Don't hide your perfect pins. Dress for your body type rather than your age by highlighting your assets and downplaying your less-than-splendid bits to get on the short track to chic. Remember: Showing too much skin at any age is never chic.

Libya to benefit from dictator's assets

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON, ENGLAND

The U.S. will release some $1.5 billion US in frozen Gadhafi assets to Libya's National Transitional Council, the State Department has announced. And rebels may soon face a windfall as other countries follow suit.

Switzerland and Britain have said they'll release frozen assets as soon as the UN lifts sanctions against Libya. Assets frozen elsewhere in the EU will follow.

"We want to make their assets available to Libya's new regime and will do so when the situation stabilizes," EU foreign affairs spokesman Michael Mann told Metro.

How much money Col. Moammar Gadhafi, his family and his friends possess is anyone's guess. In the past several months, millions of dollars worth of funds have been frozen. But much more is thought to be hidden in overseas properties and companies. Distinguishing between assets belonging to the Gadhafis and the Libyan state is difficult.

Even so, the rebels can expect huge amounts of money. The U.S. alone has another $30 billion in frozen Gadhafi assets.

"We have a plan ready for Day 1 when Gadhafi is gone," says Mann. "Given Libya's resources, it doesn't need a lot of financial assistance."

► Rebels may be running out of weapons but cannot claim 'true' victory until the long-time dictator is found ► NATO issued 46 strike missions on Tuesday

Scattered battles flared yesterday across the Libyan capital, with pro-regime snipers cutting off the road to Tripoli's airport while loyalist fighters launched repeated attacks on Moammar's Gadhafi's captured Bab al-Aziziya compound.

While opposition fighters claimed they had most of Tripoli under control, a defiant Gadhafi vowed from hiding that he would fight on "until victory or martyrdom."

Few civilians were willing to venture outside. The streets were scattered with debris, while rebels manned checkpoints.

But intense clashes broke out in the Abu Salim neighbourhood, which is thought to be one of the regime's final strongholds.

Gadhafi's foreign minister, Abdul Ati al-Obeidi, told British media that the dictator's rule "was over" and that safe passage out of Libya was now unlikely.

In London, British Foreign Secretary William Hague said it was clear Gadhafi had lost control of most of the capital and called him on to "stop issuing delusional statements."

WestJet plans to keep Fido flying

- Airline says hi-tech filter system keeps air fresh
- CMA recommends furry critters be kept in cargo
- Company says few allergy-related problems on flights

WestJet Airlines says it's not interested in banning Fluffy and Fido from airplane cabins.

The Canadian Medical Association is suggesting furry friends should travel in the cargo section of airplanes because they may present serious risks for people with pet-related allergies.

But the Calgary-based discount carrier says passengers are kept apart if they alert the airline ahead of time that they have allergies.

They also ask that those who take journeys with pets let them know in advance as well.

To combat any potential issues, WestJet also says its planes are equipped with good air filters that efficiently eliminate allergens.

Another option the airline presents to passengers with allergies is the chance to be placed on a different flight — one with no dogs or cats on board.

WestJet says that, over the course of the past year and a half, it has only had a handful of allergy-related incidents reported on the thousands of flights the airline oversees on a daily basis.

Air Canada had implemented a policy between 2006 and 2009 banning pets from being stowed in the cabin, but later reversed it.

The head of the Alberta Medical Association is throwing his support behind the idea of a ban.

Dr. Patrick White points out that it's pretty hard to get air travellers to a hospital quickly if they have a serious allergic reaction.

France announces tax hikes, spending cuts

President Nicolas Sarkozy's government has bowed to economic reality, admitting its growth forecasts were overly rosy and announcing an austerity package of 11 billion euros in a bid to ensure that France doesn't miss a vital pledge to cut its deficit.

A PLEA TO STOP A CYCLE OF ABUSE

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

Now that I've been a cyclist for a few months, I know the group of people on Earth I hate most are other cyclists.

My disdain for my two-wheeled counterparts falls somewhere between Libyans' hatred of Gadhafi and New Democrats' hatred of Christie Blatchford (a tight squeeze, I know). But it's true: You can all bike at full speed under bridges with four-foot clearances, for all I care.

The only positive thing I can say about the lot of you is "Thanks for making me feel unique." Because I am apparently the only Canadian cyclist who follows the rules of the road.

I stop at stop lights (gasp). I signal my turns (shock). I do not assume "shared trail" means "cycles moving at 40 km/h and human speed bumps leaping out of the way."

The other day I approached a crosswalk with a person in it. The wheel-shocked pedestrian, accustomed to years of (the cycle of) abuse, went into full duck-and-cover mode, like a Brit during the Blitz. When she looked up from her huddle to realize I had stopped, she looked baffled, then sheepishly said, "Sorry!" as she passed in front of me.

I yelled after her: "DON'T APOLOGIZE! YOU HAD THE RIGHT OF WAY!"

You know you've become a cyclist-hating cyclist when you start yelling positive things at pedestrians.

Conversely, rarely a ride goes by without me yelling something slightly less positive at another cyclist — usually something like, "THE LIGHT IS RED, YOU [profanity] DOG [obscurity] EATING [vulgarity]!"

Then I spend the rest of the trip cycling slow so I don't catch up with that guy.

I'm not asking for puritanical devotion to the rules: I'd just like more cyclists to stop riding like they're in a Farrelly Brothers movie called Blind Cyclist, where our hero ends up covered in newspapers and dead birds as he plows through crowds of people, a strip club and a perfect wedding.

We live in a society where anything that slows cars down, including ambulances and inertia, is deemed part of the "War on the Car." Bikes are No. 1 on the list of irrational targets. When I argue back to motorists, I'd like to have some moral high ground.

So, please, let's stop the cycle of abuse together. And if any cyclists don't understand where I'm coming from, I'd recommend wearing your helmet at all times. You probably need it.

JACK LAYTON.

Jack Layton was a tireless and down-to-earth champion for social justice, homelessness, equality and personal liberty.

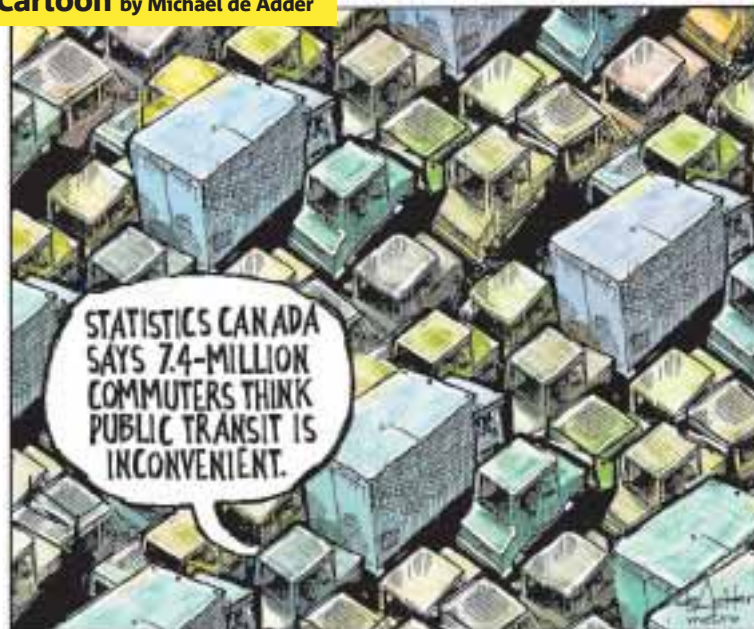

His tenacity and energy has never been seen before in Canadian politics, for which he will be sorely missed. Although we can never replace Jack Layton, all progressive politicians can honour his vision by continuing his call to action for love, hope and optimism.

JARED EVANS
VANCOUVER

Mr. Layton should be remembered as a leader who has played a greater role in bringing a lot of Quebec separatists into his party to work for the unity of the country — something no other politician did. At a time when right-wing politics have been gaining momentum, Mr. Layton managed to win big in the last election, showing that Canadians still believe in a more balanced approach. He was a man of greater charisma, a man of hope and justice and a leader who did not look down at the man of the street but looked at everyone with the respect each one deserved.

Inmate's protest takes flight

An inmate trying to get attention for his case paid a pilot to fly a banner over a New York City jail complex.

The New York Post says Vadim Vassilenko rented the Cessna 172 Skyhawk on Tuesday.

The 30-metre banner read:

"V. Vassilenko jailed 5+ yrs. — no trial — is this legal?"

He's been at the Manhattan Detention Complex since 2007 on charges of selling stolen credit card numbers as part of an international cyber-crime ring.

The plane rents for $1,250 US for two hours, and the pilot says Vassilenko had someone on the outside wire him the money.

Vassilenko faces deportation after his case is adjudicated.

His immigration lawyer, Merrill Cohen, says his client wants to be with his family in Ukraine.

Showing love to the artists

► Supporting local talent is one of the themes of weekend exhibition at The Met

The transition from construction worker to artist was a quick one for Jesse Watson.

The Winnipeg native moved to Sarnia about a year ago for a construction job. This weekend, Watson will be one of 25 artists featured in a juried art show at The Metropolitan Market.

"I've been painting and drawing for most of my life," Watson, says. "But I started to take it really seriously in the last five months."

The 22-year-old specializes in portraiture, painting and drawing images of friends and family. He says The Met provides a platform for him to showcase his work, and encourages others to do the same.

"If someone wants to participate in the artistic community, then this is a great opportunity," Watson says.

"Each week, I see so much talent at The Met and I think the art show is going to draw a huge crowd."

The theme of the weekend long exhibition is: "Support your local artists before they move to Toron-

FBI investigate threatening letter sent to Ferguson

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Craig Ferguson

Craig Ferguson managed to crack a few jokes on his talk show Tuesday after receiving an envelope packed with white powder that turned out to be harmless.

"Today someone sent an envelope packed with white powder to the show. I offered to test it, but they said 'no,'" Ferguson quipped during a studio taping of The Late Late Show.

The taping went on as scheduled after the show received a threatening letter sent to Ferguson.

Police Det. Gus Vilanueva declined to discuss the nature of the threat against the talk show host, saying only that it was sent from overseas.

Two people at CBS Television City, where the show is filmed, were temporarily held in isolation after being exposed to the powder around 3 p.m.

They were released after a hazardous materials team screened the powder and found it to be benign.

FBI spokeswoman Laura Eimiller said the agency was working with police to find out who sent the letter.

The brief scare appeared to have rattled Ferguson's nerves.

"I was going to come out and talk about the earthquake, but I can't do that now," he said about the magnitude 5.8 quake that struck the East Coast.

"Because the earthquake only scared millions of people on the East Coast, but the white powder did something much worse. It scared me."

"We are still together, and our marriage is intact," the couple said in a statement to E! News.

But a source tells TMZ that while the couple hasn't made the decision to separate, there are "significant problems in their marriage" that they are trying to work out, and that separation is still "definitely a possibility."

BACK TO SCHOOL

► Students from elementary school to the university and college set all have their eyes (and hands) on new technology when going back to school.

Cool means ... technology

► Kids clamouring for e-readers with high functionality ► Tablet explosion hitting schools

What's on top of the school supply list this year? It isn't T-shirts and tennis shoes. It's the other T — for mobile tech.

Kids as young as elementary age are looking for smart-phone upgrades, while the college set is sussing out the explosion in tablets, said Craig Johnson, president of the retail consulting and research firm Customer Growth Partners in New Canaan, Conn.

"The single most important thing is the acceleration of technology for back to school. Kids don't get excited about a new lunch box these days, or a new backpack. Cool means technology," he said.

That means e-readers with high functionality like highlighting, underlin-

The new Nook has a 15-centimetre (six-inch) touchscreen and crisp, clear print for reading in bright light, tech analyst Andrea Smith told reporters at a recent Consumer Electronics Association trade show. It also indicates how many pages to the end of a chapter and has received praise for long battery life.

Back-to-school tech also means tablets. Once hallowed Apple ground, iPad 2 competitors are everywhere this season. Apple is still the big kid, but Android technology is in pursuit. Some of the new tablets run Adobe Flash software, which Apple doesn't have.

In addition to the iPad 2, Smith suggests the 25-cm (10-inch) Toshiba Thrive for back to school. It runs on Android, has two USB ports and an SD card reader.

Tablets are cool, but are they practical for actual school work? That might have everything to do with the popularity of blue-tooth-enabled keyboard add-ons, including the new one Smith and Morris like from Logitech with a case that easily turns into a tablet stand. Toshiba has a keyboard, too, also sold separately.

Stock up on supplies

ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK
FOR METRO

Pencils, papers, teacher's looks ... indeed it's that time of year when back-to-school supply shopping has hit.

So what's hot in the classroom this fall?

First, forget your plain old ballpoint pens — writing implements are now bendable, sparkly, smelly, stretchy and more. And to really express your personal style, everything from pens and pencils to lunch bags and backpacks are covered with eye-catching designs.

"We have Tony Hawk, the skateboarder, notebooks and other items designed with him in mind," says Steve Grebenc, a general manager for a west-end, Toronto-based Staples.

Lunch bags (such as the PKG line of bags) are also breaking out of their neutral style colours.

► Binders are a must-have for back-to-school supplies. Staples has Tony Hawk related items, including flash drives, below right.

"We have a few new lines with vibrant colours that appeal to the younger grades," says Grebenc.

Lunch bags also continue to move into lunch purses, such as Thermos' Fashion Lunch Tote bags. Don't like the bags you see? Pick up a Tat-too line of bags, which are black and white in design, but come with markers so your little

Van Gogh can colour them himself or herself. And thanks in part to Litterless

Lunch movements in some schools, Grebenc notes the reusable trend continues with more options for Thermoses and water bottles.

Put your best foot forward

Who doesn't love back to school shopping? But before heading out, make note of these hot trends to stock your closets with.

In colours and prints for fall, there are three things to remember, says Julianna Smith, a Toronto-based blogger for Yorkdale mall.

"Many summer trends are staying around, so bright colours like lime green, bright orange and cobalt blue are making their way into fall," says Smith.

Other hot must-haves include python and snakeskin-printed accessories and those hot, metallics such as gold and silver.

For children, Old Navy's Motorcycle Boots can incorporate the look and keep their legs covered during lunch time play.

Also for the younger-than-10-year set, laceless shoes continue to appear on store shelves in bright pinks, fuschias, greens and blues, and shoes that including breathable mesh to endure hard recess play (such as Reebok's new ZigTech line of children's running shoes).

There's good news about the fall 2011 trends — they are easy to incorporate into your existing decor and don't have to cost the moon.

Warm grey tones help to cool down all the golden taupe colours while trendy brights add new life to colourless spaces.

Here's a rundown of this season's most important decor trends to bring home.

Want a deal?

I am thrilled to have curated today's collection of trend-inspired home products with HomeSav, the members-only online shopping club.

Check out homesav.com: Each item in the collection was chosen by me and will be available to buy at up to 80 per cent off the regular retail price. The sales start today!

Fall trends easy to live with

New neutrals:

You may have already heard that grey is on the A-list with decorators and designers as a new neutral colour.

We've seen the popularity of grey in the fashion world for sometime so it's natural that it would make its way into the home.

Adding grey to your existing colour scheme will help cool down the overall look of a room, which is key this season for the neutrals.

All versions of grey (and all tones from light to dark) are trendy.

I stay away from the steel-blue grey tones as they remind me too much of the greys that were popular in the 1980s.

The new grey is warmer — think flannel grey suiting, putty or smoke as ways to describe this new neutral.

It's a grey tone that's easy to live with and welcome as a long-term friend.

Found treasures:

Mixing found-looking objects into a space is often the best way to add personality to a room.

If your usual style is modern, try adding a traditional rug, pillow, piece of art or a corner chair to break up the modern feel and create an unexpected surprise. My preferred pieces would be: hand-blown glassware, upholstered furniture that is button-tufted or anything with letters or numbers motifs. Old subway signs and French linen laundry bags turned into pillows are other ideas.

No need to scour the flea markets — these looks can be seen in trendy home decor stores for fall.

Pop of colour: For the past 10 years, popular decor colours have taken from the muted shades like wedgewood blue, sage green and cranberry.

The perfect complement to all the new grey neutral tones are a few shocking 'wake me up' colours.

My favourite one is citron yellow. Wherever you may have used green or gallery white you can use yellow.

Another great choice is mulberry — a purple tone with a touch of pink and a splash of blue in it.

brown wood furniture and deep grey painted walls.

A colour like citron will wake up a contemporary room while mulberry helps soothe a traditional space and take away from the masculinity of grey.

Mix and match: The overall look this fall is one of collection — mixing and matching styles together while using colour as a common denominator.

A square 1960s inspired side table beside a traditional sofa with a modern painting hung above — it's all about getting a mix of styles to give a room personality.

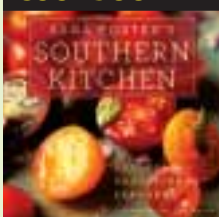

When I find an interesting lamp, chair or table it must have one criteria; "does this look like it has history or story to it?"

Another trend to consider is mixing textures.

The slub of linen on a sofa, the plush of velvet on an ottoman or the smoothness of silk woven into a rug or on a pillow are great ways to shake up a room and appeal to both your sight and touch.

A designer friend once gave me a great rule for mixing alternate styles: 70 per cent of your furnishings and accessories should be of your favourite style and the remaining 30 percent should be different.

The mystery of Pittsburgh

► Fans worried about winter without Crosby ► Many wondering if captain is in worse shape than is being said

Sidney Crosby's health issues are making for a very unsettled late Pittsburgh summer.

Nearly a quarter-century since The Mysteries of Pittsburgh was a best-selling book, the region's hockey fans are dealing with another riddle wrapped inside an enigma.

How badly is Crosby still hurting after sustaining what appeared to be multiple concussions only days apart in January? Will his lengthy layoff stretch into the new season? And when No. 87 finally does play, will he again be hockey's best player?

The answers don't appear to be forthcoming anytime soon, and that's making the Penguins' fan base as nervous as an overtime Game 7.

Since leaving town nearly four months ago, Crosby hasn't said anything publicly about his persistent post-concussion symptoms. The Penguins aren't saying much, either, if only because they don't know much. Even some of Crosby's own teammates are privately wondering why they aren't getting more information.

"I can't wave a wand and tell you how it's going to play out," said Penguins coach Dan Bylsma, who said the team might not get a true reading of Crosby's status until training camp starts in mid-September.

"We haven't heard from Sid since he left town and, while it's his off-season, they (the Penguins) seem to be unsure, too ... (leading) fans to believe that they're hiding something or there's something deeper."

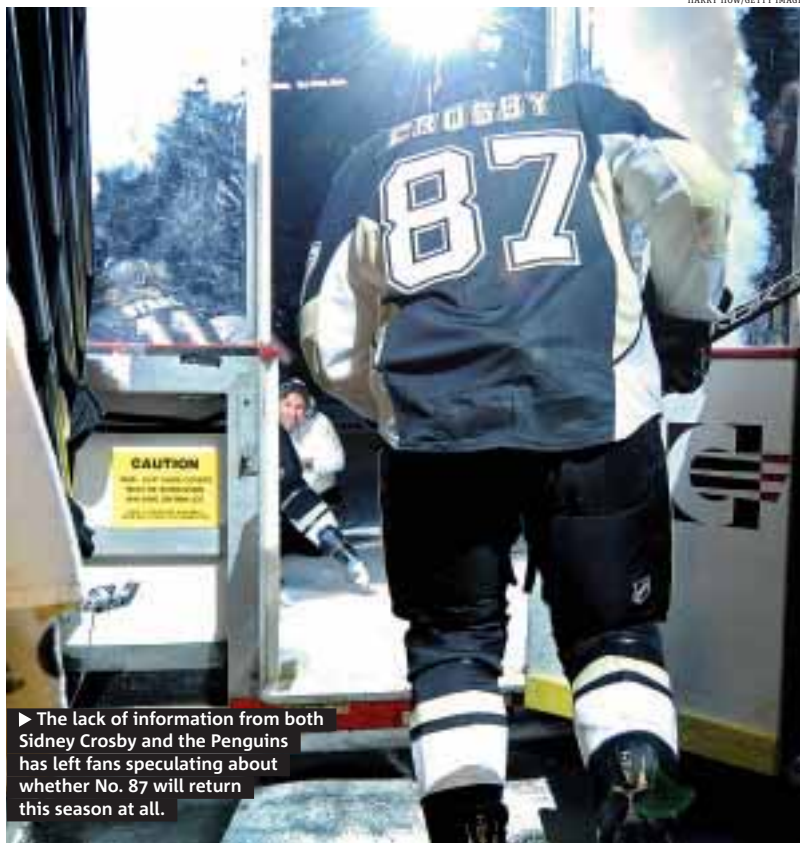

PITTSBURGH TALK SHOW HOST
KEN LAIRD

At a time of the year when Pittsburghers generally are focused on the soon-to-start Steelers season, many are on edge because Crosby still isn't healthy eight months after being hurt.

"I'm worried," said Brian Smith, a 23-year-old Duquesne University graduate school student from Pittsburgh.

"I worked in the concussion lab at my undergrad school, and concussions can be serious, especially when you've gotten two in a row like that. They can really mess you up. He definitely needs to take his time. I want him to come back, but I don't want him to ruin the rest of his life."

Smith fears Crosby's case is less predictable because it now appears the Penguins captain had concussions in separate games four days apart in January.

► The lack of information from both Sidney Crosby and the Penguins has left fans speculating about whether No. 87 will return this season at all.

Camp concerns

Sidney Crosby is still working out, and neither he nor the Penguins are saying if he is skating at a pace consistent with a player about to report to camp.

After being shut down for a few weeks after Pittsburgh's first-round loss to the Tampa Bay Lightning, Crosby resumed his off-season workouts in his native Nova Scotia.

But as the workouts intensified, the symptoms returned. Penguins general manager Ray Shero, who has been in contact with Crosby, isn't sure exactly what they were.

"If he's not ready for the start of the season, I'm worried for the Penguins for sure," said Nick Barone, 20, a former hockey player for Bethel Park (Pa.) High School. "I don't think they could go a whole season without Crosby. A lot of people will be worried if Crosby's not out there."

Skinner ready for the spotlight

► Last year's rookie of the year returns for second season with a much higher profile ► Canes GM praises 19-year-old's 'mental toughness'

What can Jeff Skinner do for an encore?

In one form or another that question will be asked again and again as the NHL's reigning rookie of the year settles into his second season with the Carolina Hurricanes.

Skinner exceeded all expectations a year ago by topping 30 goals and established a new standard to live up to in the process. However, those who know the 19-year-old believe he's more than capable of handling the added attention and pressure.

"This is a young man that has a special mental toughness and approach to the game and I don't see that being an issue," Carolina general manager Jim Rutherford said Wednesday.

"He's a guy that I least worry about in the way he prepares himself — I've learned that real quickly in the short year I've known him and we've had him," added Rutherford. "I look forward to him getting here for camp and look forward to him carrying on his good season from last year."

In the last decade, only Jeff Skinner and Sidney Crosby have scored 30 goals as an 18 year old.

It's often easier said than done. Buffalo Sabres defenceman Tyler Myers and Columbus Blue Jackets goalie Steve Mason, the two Calder Trophy winners before Skinner, each struggled as sophomores.

The Hurricanes are toying with the idea of giving Skinner more responsibility this season. His transition to the NHL was made a little easier with a move from centre to the wing and there's been much internal debate about what position — and what line — best suits him.

"There's so many different conversations and so many different options," said Rutherford. "I would suspect at some point that Jeff Skinner and Eric Staal are going to play together — so they both can't play centre and they can both play the wing."

Even after Carolina fell just short of the playoffs in April, Skinner kept busy. He represented Canada at the IIHF World Hockey Championship in Slovakia and quickly jumped into workouts under Gary Roberts after returning to North America.

This week he is among 20 NHLers participating in the BioSteel hockey camp as a final tuneup before training camp begins.

"With the way our season ended last year, it's not hard to get motivated," Skinner said after a yoga session yesterday morning.

Motivation has rarely been an issue for the soft-spoken teenager, whom Roberts says was the leanest player to work under him last summer.

ting up 63 points in his rookie season.

"This kid is a wonderful, wonderful young man who does his work every day," said Roberts. "He just quietly goes about his business. He hides in the corner of the gym, kind of sneaks in and does his sets and sneaks back out."

With the start of his second training camp fast approaching, Skinner acknowledges that there will be some added pressure this year.

However, he expects it to be offset by the experience he's gained over the last 12 months.

"Thinking back to last summer and all the things that you have going on, you're getting to camp not sure where you're going to be," said Skinner. "You're living in a hotel and you're just trying to make the team. This time it's going to be fun going into camp knowing the expectations sort of put on me."

"Hopefully I rise to the challenge."

LABATT PARK — BETTER WITH AGE

MIKE ARSENAULT
FOR METRO NEWS

If baseball stadiums were jewels, then Labatt Park would be the Heart of the Ocean — before the old lady threw it into the water at the end of Titanic.

For a fan, there's nothing like passing through the wrought-iron gate at the stadium entrance and seeing the imposing façade of Labatt Park's grandstand peeking through the cluster of trees along the road.

You can gaze up at the brick exterior as Roman citizens would have done thousands of years ago upon entering the Colosseum.

The immaculate condition of the stadium makes it hard to believe that it's 134 years old. I'm sure most Hollywood starlets would love to have the nipping and tucking that Labatt Park does on a nightly basis to ensure the field is smooth and undulation-free.

"It's as functional as any baseball park you'll ever find," said Joe O'Neill, president of the Intercounty Baseball League and the London and District Baseball Association. "If you look at an aerial photograph, you can see the quality of the diamond and how it's maintained. It's at a major-league level."

While I'm more familiar with the dugout and bullpen benches — considering I was stapled to them most of the summer — I can assure you that the pristine condition of the grass and dirt is a rarity at most facilities across the country.

Especially for a field that allows kids to play in the same sandbox as professionals.

"When 13- and 14-year-old kids show up to play a tournament game on that (field), their eyes are as big as saucers," O'Neill said. "They're getting a chance to play in a park that is put together like a major-league park."

Oddly enough, my eyes get as big as saucers whenever I see the beer concession stand, which is reason enough for Labatt Park to be crowned champion.
